

GTH-GA Travels to New Orleans for the National Conference of State Legislatures

Gordon Thomas Honeywell Governmental Affairs (GTH-GA) employees traveled to New Orleans, Louisiana for the annual National Conference of State Legislatures, July 23rd-25th.

Gordon Thomas Honeywell Governmental Affairs, a leading lobbying firm headquartered in Tacoma, Washington, annually attends the National Conference of State Legislatures to inform lawmakers from around the nation about their clients' issues, focusing mostly on public safety and technology.

Legislators were educated on issues through a booth the firm organizes every year. This year, the booth included presentations from eight of Gordon Thomas Honeywell Governmental Affairs' clients, including Applied Biosystems, Sagem Morpho, Appriss MethCheck, Appriss SONAR, Appriss VINE, Ammunition Coding Systems, MicroPlanet, and Prepared Response. Clients demonstrated DNA databasing, finger imaging technology to stop Medicaid fraud, technology tracking pseudoephedrine sales, sex offender registration, victim protective order notification, bullet identification technology, energy efficiency technology, and emergency response mapping technology.

Nearly 400 legislators, legislative staff, and guests toured the booth, speaking with all eight clients. The conference is respected as a valuable tool for legislators nationwide. NCSL is a great opportunity for legislators around the country to learn and experience new public policy initiatives.
